

MIZUSHIMA, Asaho

Speciality: Constitutional Law, Law and Policy, Peace Studies

Professor Dr. Asaho Mizushima has been a Professor at Waseda University School of Law since 1996. He specializes in a variety of areas, including Constitutional Law, Theory of Legal Policy, and Peace Studies. He lectures on Constitutional Law, Theory of Legal Policy, Constitutional Law Seminar, Peace Studies, and Okinawa Studies. He graduated from Waseda University School of Law in 1976, completed the Master's and Doctoral Courses at Waseda University, and became an Associate Professor at Sapporo Gakuin University in 1983 and Associate Professor at Hiroshima University in 1989. He has held the present post since 1996. He has conducted overseas research at Freie Universität Berlin and the University of Bonn. His recent areas of research are Constitutional Law: Peace and Security in the post-cold war era, Theory of the Reform of Constitutional Law, and Development of Military Legislation in Germany. His main publications include Study of the Modern Military Legislation, Peace without Military Power, Frank Opinions on Contemporary World Affairs, Diagnose the revision of the constitution argument, The Hiroshima and Peace Constitution, 4th., Okinawa and Constitution, and Securing and Regenerating the Peace Constitution.

Degree: Ph.D in Law (Waseda University, 1997) LL.M (Waseda University, 1978), LL.B (Waseda University, 1976)

E-mail: mizushim@waseda.jp

URL: <http://www.asaho.com/>

http://www.waseda.jp/hiken/en/about_us/members/MIZUSHIMA.html